TRANSPORTATION UPDATES

Queen Creek continues to be one of the fastest growing communities in Maricopa County. With that growth comes the need for additional infrastructure. There are multiple projects underway around Town to help alleviate traffic and improve current roadways. The SR 24 Interim Phase II has been completed, following the completion of SR 24 Phase I that was completed in 2014.

SR 24 Interim Phase II from Ellsworth Road to Ironwood Drive began in late 2020 and opened in August of 2022. SR 24 is complete with two lanes in each direction with a median, two interchanges at Williams Field Road and Ironwood Drive, with an interchange at Meridian Road set to open in December of 2022, and Signal Butte Road opening in early 2023.

Credit: Arizona Department of Transportation

It's important to note that the ultimate build-out of SR 24 is not anticipated until the 5th phase of the regional transportation plan. The interim freeway will help serve the transportation needs of our community until additional funding is made available. To stay informed, visit Arizona Department of Transportation.

The Town of Queen Creek is currently in their 10-Year Transportation Improvement Plan (2016 - 2026). Projects completed between 2017-2020:

Ellsworth Road - Queen Creek to Germann

Power Road - Ocotillo to Brooks Farm

Riggs Road - Power to Hawes

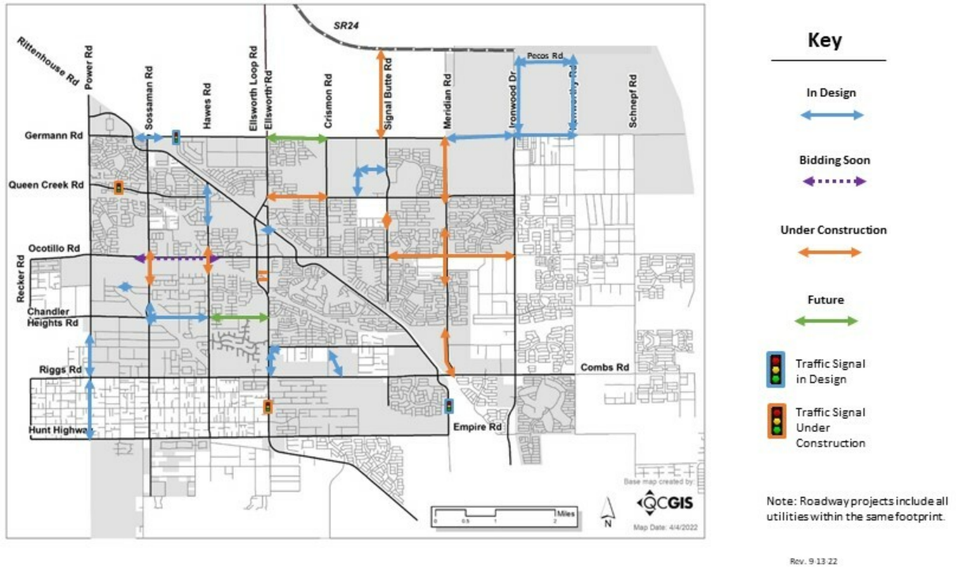

Riggs Road - Ellsworth to Meridian

Crismon Road - Queen Creek to Germann

Ocotillo Road - Ellsworth Loop to Signal Butte

Merdian Rd from Queen Creek to Germann.

CIP Projects – Transportation

Proposition 400

On July 6th, 2022, Arizona Governor Doug Ducey changed the course of the development of Maricopa County by vetoing H.B. 2685, the Proposition 400 extension.

In 1985, Maricopa County's Regional Transportation Plan, Proposition 300 was passed. Proposition 300 was set to expire in 2005.  Between 2000 and 2003, plans for transportation needs beyond 2005 were developed. There was a transportation committee comprised of municipal officers, Maricopa County Representatives, an ADOT board member, and six private sector business community representatives were put in place to create the next regional transportation plan, Proposition 400. In that proposition was a half-cent sales tax which would provide funding that would be used to establish and improve roads, freeways, highways, and public transit in the area.

The area transportation network under Proposition 400 was passed as H.B. 2456 and signed by the governor to go on the November 2004 ballot, where it passed with a 58% majority vote, extending the tax through 2025.

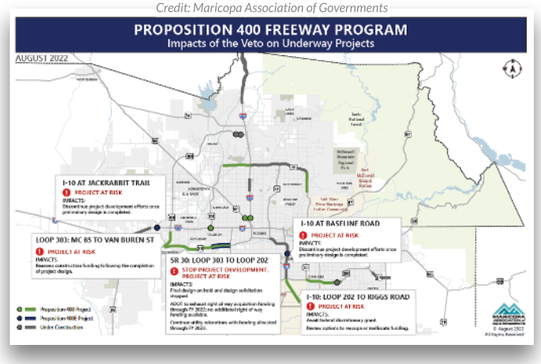

Proposal for the Proposition 400 renewal (H.B. 2685) began planning in 2018. Maricopa Association of Governments considered raising the sales tax to a 1 cent sales tax, but legislative resistance led to a proposal of a continuation of a 1/2 cent tax for the next 25 years, a 5 year increase to the original Proposition 400.

The continuation of the 1/2 cent sales tax is critical and very beneficial for the future of Maricopa County. The proposed continuation in Proposition 400 would have funded more than 350 freeway/highway lane miles, 186 new HOV lanes, 1,300 new or improved miles of arterial roads, About 12 miles of new light rail, 37 miles of bus rapid transit, and 7 miles of new streetcar support.

Governor Ducey cites many reasons why he decided to veto H.B. 2685. The first was the tax's five year increase from the original Proposition 400. Governor Ducey states "H.B. 2685 ignores this precedent and increases the tax period to 25 years. The additional five years are a tax increase and should not be perceived as a tax continuation." The next reason for the veto was because "H.B. 2685 reduces the amount of funding being distributed to the regional freeway system and fails to provide a clear framework on how these assets will be maintained as they continue to age." The concern for maintenance of all assets paid for by this half-cent sales tax is his concern, rather than expansion. His last point was that this 25 year plan was made before the Investment in Infrastructure and Jobs act had recently passed, and their proposed plan did not account for this passed bill and how they could utilize the bill for state and federal dollars. Ducey also mentions that the language is biased throughout the proposal, the election date and ballot description were concerning, and the inflationary period going on now, cutting taxes to provide relief to families is his priority at the moment.

The renewal of Proposition 400 is very important because it will provide additional funding for transportation expansion. State and federal resources by themselves are insufficient relative to need. With the veto regional projects and programs are put on hold until funding can be secured. By doing this projects can increase in cost by hundreds of millions. The future of freeways in Maricopa County without an extension of the dedicated half-cent sales tax is bleak, we are already witnessing the effects with multiple projects across the county at risk due to the lack of funding and support that would have been given with the extension.

Credit: Maricopa Association of Governments

The current funding would be focused on existing infrastructure to meet federal performance targets, and not building and expanding current freeways.

The loss of the dedicated half-cent sales tax will be detrimental to the regions transportation network: The region will be unable to keep up with current and future growth, and struggle to modernize infrastructure. There will be significant impacts to economic prosperity and quality of life.

Improvement and expansion for the future will have to be funded wholly locally in order to be done, as there is no budget left for improvements, which is a real burden as this area continues to grow.

Credit: Maricopa Association of Governments

Proposition 400 expires December 31st, 2025. Maricopa Association of Governments have a new opportunity to try this extension again, with a new state legislature and governor in 2023. Although the extension of Proposition 400 can be passed before 2025, the damage to transportation planning that was caused by the veto will remain, and continue until the transportation plan extension is finally passed.

QUEEN CREEK OLIVE MILL

What started in 1998 as an experiment to see how well olives could thrive in the Sonoran Desert has now grown into the Queen Creek Olive Mill, an agri-tourism destination where travelers come from around the world to learn about the production of extra virgin olive oil (EVOO) and its benefits. Olive Oil 101 Classes begin daily in the grove where visitors learn why olive trees thrive so well in our micro-climate. Two eateries, del Piero Kitchen and Di Oliva Italian Bistro, use garden-sourced and premium, Italian ingredients to create menus inspired by old-world family recipes. Guests tend to taste their way through the gourmet marketplace where they find a selection of extra virgin olive oils, balsamic vinegar, and other culinary treasures that have been specially curated by the Mill's Olive Oil Sommelier, Perry Rea. Peek into the OliveSpa lab where you'll see all-natural and EVOO-based skincare products being crafted that you can test and try right on site. Or, become a coffee connoisseur with Infusion Coffee & Tea Crafters, a team of educators delivering world-class coffee and tea experiences, from seed to cup, every day at the Mill. With so much to taste, test, and experience, you'll discover a world of flavor at the Queen Creek Olive Mill.

DeBellevue Global

Headquartered in Queen Creek

DeBellevue Global was founded on the fundamental belief that small business is the heartbeat of America and is what highlights the tenacity and resilience of the American people. That said, a business owner can be the best in their industry but if they do not know how to get in front of the people who can use their services, they are unable to survive. It is our mission to act as a bridge between the people to provide services and the people who need them. We create messages that resonate with our clients target audience.

We provide a resource for businesses that are falling flat on social media. We handle all aspects of social media for our clients and help them grow in an organic and sustainable way. We believe that it is a slow and steady relationship building process that ultimately builds the best brand recognition, and brand loyalty.

Our company creates the content, schedules the content, responds to basic inquiries all while matching your brand voice. We ask our clients what their definition of success is on social media, then we take that definition and create a road map to get us there. Each plan is individualized.

While we have clients in over 19 countries at any given time, it is our local clients that I find the most joy in working with as I feel like as a company, we are giving back to our local community, thriving together. Our clients range from the solopreneur to some of the largest corporations in the country. If you know who you serve, know why you serve them and are purpose-driven, we can help!

When done correctly, social media is a great way to build lasting relationships with your audience in a way that is predictable and scalable. If you are tired of being the best kept secret, reach out to us and let's see if we can help!
